NOSTALGIA

We just walked out into the News Room to put a piece of editorial copy in the basket. (The place where all copy for typesetting goes.) And, again, we got a shock. The News Room was just one big empty space. For months we've been working with carpenters, electricians, plumbers, painters, and telephone service men in the building of a new News Room and a new Composing Room. For weeks we've been looking forward to this particular day when the new space would be put into service. But we still can't get used to the shock of it all.

More than five years ago, the Daily Times Leader was the first daily newspaper in Mississippi to shift from a hot metal operation to the new photographic offset technique of printing.

For weeks after the "switch", we couldn't get used to the silence. The constant clatter of Linotypes was gone. It made us want to walk into the Composing Room and shout: "Let's get moving. We're missing deadlines." But deadlines WERE being met. Pages WERE steadily moving to the Press Room... almost silently.

Thank goodness there remained the chatter of the Associated Press teletype machines. And now they are out of hearing distance too! And now we can thank goodness for a little background music and regular ringing of the telephones, and the clunky clunk of this typewriter. A fellow just has to have SOME noise to make him know he's still in a newspaper office! — Henry Harris' column "Pencil Shavings" in West Point (Miss.) Times Leader

Star Editor's Note: Mr. Harris, son of an old friend, the late Edgar Harris, became publisher at West Point on his father's death some years ago. The younger Harris visited The Star in 1966 just after our conversion to the offset printing system Dec. 29, 1965, in preparation for the same switch at West Point.

When I recalled that I had visited the elder Harris' home in Blytheville in 1928, traveling from El Dorado, young Harris remarked: "I was 3 years old at the time."

The elder Harris in the early 1920s sold the Hattiesburg (Miss.) American, moved to Blytheville and consolidated the local weeklies into the present daily Blytheville Courier News, but sold that property to return to his native Mississippi, again merging weeklies into the present daily West Point Times Leader.

Soon after his return to Mississippi the elder Harris proposed that we join forces and buy a group of Mississippi weeklies in towns promising growth. It was tempting but I elected to remain in Arkansas, leaving El Dorado to buy and consolidate the local dailies as Hope Star Jan. 18, 1929, in partnership with the late C. E. Palmer of Texarkana. —AHW

Rockefeller predicts easy victory for GOP

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Thursday that the Democratic National Convention would make the Republican National Convention easier.

Rockefeller, the GOP national committeeman for Arkansas, said the Democratic convention's actions would strengthen President Nixon's re-election chance this fall.

"The conduct of the Democratic convention and the controversy within the membership of the party will strengthen Mr. Nixon's opportunity," Rockefeller said.

Asked what he thought of the Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern, Rockefeller replied: "I think very highly of Mr. Nixon and I will work diligently in his behalf."

Pastures in trouble in midsummer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livestock pastures at midsummer are in average condition nationally but some important grazing areas are in serious trouble, according to Agriculture Department surveys.

As of July 1, says the Crop Reporting Board, pasture and range conditions averaged 82 per cent across the country, down seasonally two points from June but only one point short of the 10-year average for the date.

However, dry weather in some sections and too much rain in others have hurt summer grazing. Survey results were included in the department's July crop report.

Grass was reported "poor to fair" in much of the southwest and in south central states, and "very poor" ratings were reported for pastures in California and Arkansas.

Officials said "good to excellent" grazing conditions prevailed in most other areas of the country except for Missouri and Wisconsin.

Pastures were rated best in South Dakota—99 per cent, closely followed by Virginia, North Dakota and Washington, the report said. Nonirrigated pastures in California were the lowest at 51 per cent.

Hay production this year may be down slightly, according to July 1 indications. The acreage of all types of hay was estimated at 62.5 million acres.

Lt. Calley's father died

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — William L. Calley Sr. died in a Veterans Administration hospital Thursday night, several hours after a 30-minute visit by his son, a key figure in the My Lai massacre.

Malcolm Randall, hospital administrator, said the father of Lt. William Calley died as a result of respiratory arrest, which stemmed from diabetic coma. He was admitted to hospital for the fourth time June 13.

Frasier: Make love, not roar

LAGUNA HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Frasier the lion made love not roar.

Cast off when a Mexican circus went bankrupt, the scruffy, scrawny cat was rescued by Lion Country Safari, a wildlife preserve, and nursed back to health.

He was clearly past his prime. Bleary-eyed and nearly toothless, he suffered from rheumatism and arthritis and had trouble walking. His 20 lion years were the equivalent of more than 80 human years.

But he became a national sex symbol by his success as a lover. He sired 35 cubs in 18 months.

Frasier was introduced to a "pride"—a pack—of 12 young females after the fussy lionesses spurned at least five young, virile candidates. One would-be lover was badly mauled.

Putting Frasier in with the pride was supposed to be a joke. But the next morning the lionesses were found purring placidly in the sun near an exhausted but happy Frasier. He lay on his back, paws in air.

He was adored by the lionesses. When he was hungry the females would fetch his food and place it at his feet and even chew it for him. When he took walks, a lioness took her place on each side of his elderly and infirm body to hold him up.

Smithsonian branch plan is abandoned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Museum and Cultural

Commission abandoned Thursday the idea of creating a Mid-America Museum and Cultural Center at Hot Springs that it had hoped to operate in cooperation with the Smithsonian Institution.

Instead, the commission voted to study the possibility of establishing a water museum and institute on Goat Island in Lake Hamilton near Hot Springs.

Ex-Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, commission chairman, said officials of the Smithsonian had taken a "negative" position against operating the proposed museum and cultural center.

On the newest proposal, Rockefeller said he wanted a condition of the project to be that Hot Springs begin taking steps to clear up its sewage system problems will be buried Saturday at the preserve.

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

Trivia has always intrigued me. There is something about being able to spout off little-known facts that stirs my adrenalin to a frothy texture.

For example, I know the name of two men who played the part of Clarabell the Clown on the old Howdy Doodly Show; four villains who terrorized Tom Terrific; the name of Lassie's trainer, Dale Evans' horse, and the actress who portrayed Scarlet's maid in Gone with the Wind.

Also at my fingertips is the correct definition of "brouhaha"; Green Hornet's sidekick's handle; the name of Hedda Hopper's son who was a television favorite on the old Perry Mason Show; the word used by Captain Midnight to enable him to fly; the name of the first Negro to set foot in Texas; the name of Tom Mix's horse; and the song that stayed on the old Hit Parade program for more than 50 weeks.

But media trivia is my favorite game, and it's inexpensive and fun to play.

Take Tuesday's Arkansas Gazette which had the following item: "Mrs. Eleanor McGovern, wife of the South Dakota senator, cooked a birthday dinner for their daughter, Mary, 17, in a Miami Beach hotel suite and later washed all the dishes herself because 'nobody would do them.'"

McGovern lands at Air Force Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern has tried out the President's landing strip at Andrews Air Force Base and says he likes it.

"We've got to get used to that," McGovern said, stepping off his chartered jet Friday night.

But he said he knows he has a long way to go before he will be using the two presidential jets parked near his aircraft.

"We're not under any illusions that the battle is won," he said. "We know it's an uphill effort."

"But I have much the same feeling I had in New Hampshire at the beginning of the year—it's an uphill effort but I think we're going to go over the top."

Meanwhile, McGovern's running mate, Sen. Thomas Eagleton was welcomed back to his home state by 400 cheering supporters at Kansas City Municipal Airport Friday night.

After the flight in from Miami Beach, the 42-year-old senator said he felt somewhere "between euphoria and terribly tired."

He plans to fly to Washington immediately after a speaking engagement before the National Audio-Visual Association at Kansas City today.

McGovern brought a sizable portion of the Washington press corps and the District of Columbia delegation home with him Friday night from Miami Beach.

He moved up and down the aisle during the flight, obviously in a good mood. "It was a hectic, crazy week," he told one delegate. "But it came out all right."

Before leaving Miami Beach, McGovern spent most of the day in consultations with party leaders and attended a meeting of the Democratic National Committee meeting at which Lawrence F. O'Brien resigned as national chairman.

McGovern announced the new chairman is Mrs. Jean Westwood of West Jordan, Utah, who was a Utah Democratic committeewoman and an ardent McGovern supporter.

McGovern received something of a setback in his choice for party vice chairman. He nominated Pierre Salinger, a campaign adviser and former White House press secretary, but blacks on the committee nominated Basil Paterson of

New York, a black former state senator.

An awkward moment followed, and Salinger, apparently noting the vigorous applause for Paterson, withdrew from contention, saying, "I think I sense the feeling of this committee." Paterson was elected.

Mrs. Westwood is the first woman of either major party to head a national committee. Friends described the 48-year-old grandmother as a dedicated organizer who knew Sen. McGovern would get the nomination when others considered him a long shot.

Aides said McGovern plans to relax at home in Washington all weekend with no public appearances and no meetings, and then leave Monday morning for a two-week vacation at Sylvan Lake Lodge near Custer, S.D.

Shooting in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier and a guerrilla gunman were shot dead in Belfast early today and shooting broke out in Londonderry as the Irish Republican Army continued its offensive across Northern Ireland.

Troops in Londonderry were fired on by snipers and claimed hitting two of their attackers. "We think one of them may have been killed," an army spokesman said.

Eleven persons — five soldiers and six civilians — were killed during the past 24 hours, raising the death toll in three years of communal fighting to 438.

With the British government now fighting to salvage some prospect for its four-month-old peace initiative, hundreds of Catholics were heading for the Irish Republican border and scores of families in the capital were leaving their homes to seek refuge in Belfast's strongly guarded "no-go" strongholds.

After a week of violence following the collapse of the Irish Republican Army's 13-day cease-fire last Sunday, many persons, both Catholic and Protestant, feared the violence would hit a new peak this weekend.

During one of the rousing numbers as the evening progresses, a young man brings his "Deborah Jim" to the stage to accompany the banjo, guitar, and fiddle. For those of you who, as a child, never had the pleasure of playing with a "Deborah Jim", it is a multi-jointed wooden doll on a string similar to a puppet; but no strings are pulled in a precise manner to control the doll. A flexible board is placed under the doll, a narrow handle on the board held in place by a leg or elbow, and a free hand is used to set the board to

Television and Radio

Editor's Note: During Cynthia Lowry's vacation, the column is being written by invited guests, each of whom was asked specific questions about his area of expertise. Joe Garagiola, former big league baseball player, has moved in many directions away from sports—regular on NBC's "Today Show," game-show host and commercial spokesman. Here is his comment on a TV ritual.

By JOE GARAGIOLA
Q. The sports interview so often seems to consist of questions to which there can only be one blue-sky answer, and often not a very accurate one. Why does it have to be so inane and predictable?

A. Sure, there are a lot of cliches. The interviewer and interviewee are often locked into cliché situations.

Example: "Well, skipper, now that your team has lost 27 consecutive games, what do you intend to do?" What can the manager say? He'd like to say, "I've got a solution, but there is a law against manslaughter." Instead, he's going to give you a cliché answer.

The interviewer can come up with some dandy questions. Right after Don Larsen pitched his perfect game in the 1956 World Series, a reporter asked, "Don, is that the best game you ever pitched?"

John Brodie, star San Francisco quarterback, was once asked why he, a high-priced star, held the ball for placekickers. He answered, "Otherwise it will fall down."

Roger Craig, a former Dodgers pitcher, was asked if he threw a spitball and replied, "Not in Arizona; it dries up halfway to home plate."

But you don't often get answers like those.

Actually, questions don't change much. Just the other day, a reporter asked me, "What was your biggest thrill in television?" The day in 1946 I joined the St. Louis Cardinals, a reporter asked me, "What was your greatest thrill in baseball?"

So don't get the idea the sports guys have the cliché market cornered.

Sweater Sets.
Twin sweater sets will create lots of excitement for the cool of evening. It's a coordinated look with sweater over sweater. Short-sleeved over long sleeves or vice versa. And more interest comes with mixing and matching patterns with solid colors.

Halters Into Fall
The barebacks of the evening have come out onto the street for summer and the trend will continue into the fall. With cooler weather the halter-style tops will be worn under blazers.

Chains Are Back
With the emergence of thinner belts, returns the chain belt from a few seasons back. This time chains are worn one at a time and are slightly thinner than before.

Right, a girl, turned away at St. Peter's in Rome because of her too-mini skirt, takes out her disappointment in tears. Below, a Vatican guard spots and stops a pair of hot pants. ## Does it really make any difference?

The measure of a man

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—This problem has been of the deepest concern to me for years. Perhaps a straight answer will help settle my mind. I am 24 and afraid to let anyone see me naked.

The reason is my penis is very small—under four inches when erected.

I have avoided doctors, showers in physical education classes, skinny dipping and other possible situations where someone might see me.

I have finally persuaded myself to write to you to find out if there are any drugs which can help me. This is important because soon I will be called for a draft physical. I don't know what kind of a doctor to see about this and won't see one unless there is some way he can help. I don't need a pep talk because everything else works all right, except for my underdeveloped sex organs. I have hair and can ejaculate. Can you answer this soon? I am in love with a wonderful woman but could never disappoint her this way. Thank you for sharing your knowledge.

Dear Reader—No doubt some will severely criticize me for answering your letter.

misery and maladjustment in one of the most important aspects of your life, I'll take that chance.

First, let me tell you that the size of the penis isn't all that important, as far as normal sexual relations are concerned. A woman's areas of sensitivity are mostly the ter, but your question is a good and honest one. If answering it truthfully and frankly helps to save you and many other concerned men like you from a life of external genitals and the first one-third of the vaginal canal. The rest of the vaginal vault and the cervix don't have many sensory nerves and contribute little if anything to a woman's sexual enjoyment. Commonly, a piece of tissue can be snipped from the cervix to study for possible cancer and a woman won't even feel it. Thus, if the penis is only two or three inches long, it is still long enough to provide adequate stimulation.

Incidentally, unless a woman has been sexually active, the vaginal canal is often quite small—so narrow that on physical examination it may be difficult at first to admit even the index finger. The vaginal canal usually adapts to the size of the male partner, except in cases where the female muscles and ligaments have been torn or stretched from childbirth.

Most women would rather have a loving husband who is tender and considerate than a husband who has only a large organ. There is much more to being a man than the size of one's penis.

The concern of men over the size of their penis is very similar to the woman's concern about the size of her breasts. In both cases physical size has been related to the concept of masculinity or femininity and is an important factor in the person's self-image. You are a good example. You have sold yourself short and avoided many of life's normal situations because of your image of yourself. You have been afraid to declare your love for the woman of your choice because you are unsure of your sexual ability—all because your penis is shorter than you thought it needed to be.

Some psychiatrists say that the concern a man has over the size of his penis begins in childhood when he sees his father. He equates the size of his father's penis to his all powerful male role. He then wants to "measure up" to his dad. Our mind plays tricks on us. When we are small everything looks big and in later years we are surprised to find out that the big house was really quite small by adult standards. So the memory of the gigantic penis is implanted in the male brain as a goal to achieve.

Let me tell you that many men are on the short side and it doesn't make any difference. When the sexologists started looking for answers, one of the areas of ignorance was the size of the erect male penis. So investigators set out to get some facts. In one study of 1,500 American white males, the average length was 6 1/4 inches. In 90 per cent of the group the length varied from five to 7 1/2 inches. The remaining 10 per cent were smaller or larger. While you are on the short end of the curve, you do have lots of company, and your size is entirely normal.

Studies from vases and drawings showed the ancient Greek male was about the same size and would feel right at home in the locker room today. Some other ancient drawings when studied suggested lengths as long as 14 inches—no doubt an exaggeration by the artist.

No, you don't need to go to a doctor to get some medicine to increase the size of your penis. The only time this helps is if the person has a deficiency in the amount of male hormone being produced. From your remarks, I would guess that you are not troubled with this problem. If a man is not adequately developed because of inadequately developed testicles, then male hormone and other hormones will often help. The external genitalia will enlarge and the hair becomes more prominent as will the other characteristics of masculinity.

Older men who have a decrease in production of male hormone also begin to have a decrease in the size of the genitalia. Replacement of the normal amount of hormones has been reported to help with this problem. Giving male hormone to a person who does not have a deficiency can often suppress the formation of sperm in the testicles and can be damaging.

My best advice to you is to be glad you have one that works. If you really love the woman you mentioned, that will be the important factor in the happiness of your future married life.

Wardrobe Care

Keep up on the repairs for your wardrobe and you won't go through those dreadful mornings of switching outfits so many times. Don't put back clothing that's torn or missing buttons until you've taken care of them. Weed out things that no longer fit or that you no longer like, so what's left in your closet is ready to wear.

We are indebted to Eddy Kantar and the American Contract Bridge League Bulletin for today's hand.

The play starts out normally enough. Dummy's ace of clubs holds the first trick and West wins the second trick with the ace of trumps. He leads a second club and South ruffs.

Now South plays another trump and East must discard. East's correct discard is his last club. This card is useless but it should be played in accordance with the principle of "Treat 'em rough and tell 'em nothing."

At the table, East made the mistake of discarding a low spade.

Eddy might have made the hand even without this tell-tale play, but he had no trouble after it was made.

He simply led a spade from dummy, finessed his jack and played ace-king and a small diamond.

It didn't matter which opponent won the trick. If West won, he would have to lead a club and give Eddy a ruff and discard. If East won, he could go the ruff and discard route or lead a spade away from the king and up to dummy's queen.

How did Eddy know that East had started with five spades? East was a good enough player to make it a point to hang onto as many spades as dummy and would not have discarded that spade from a four-card or shorter spade holding.

CHORD Sense

The bidding has been:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣
Pass 4 ♦ Pass 5 ♠
Pass 5 ♥ Pass ?

You, South, hold:
♠ A J 5 4 3 ♥ K 9 7 6 ♦ void ♣ Q 10 7

What do you do now?
A—Your partner is trying to get to seven, in spite of the fact that you signed off at five clubs. Bid seven clubs with a conservative partner. Pass the buck by bidding five spades with an optimistic partner.

TODAY'S QUESTION
You bid five spades and your partner bids six clubs. What do you do now?

Keep Secrets to Yourself

HELEN BOTTEL

Why Prolong The Agency?
Sue And Helen:
I have been going with this girl for a little over a week. Kind of got railroaded into it, and she got the idea I really like her. You know how it goes. At first I didn't mind, but I don't have any feeling for her now. Don't want to hurt her though, and she likes me a lot, I mean a big lot!
Here's the problem: Should I break off with her now or ease up in a month? If I do it now, she'll know I never did like her, since it's only been a week, and that would hurt—to think I lied. If I told her I'd changed my mind after a month, she'd just think I lost interest and it might not hit her so hard. —WHICH? Which:
In a month, she might fall even more deeply in love and be hurt harder when you make your move. . . Or you might get so tangled up in guilt and pity that you'd postpone making it again.
I vote for a gentle break-off — NOW! —SUE

Dear Which:
Fast fall — quick bounce-back, usually, unless the girl continues to think HE fell too. If you don't care about her, it isn't honest to lead her on. Remember that, next time you feed out the old line to be a first-date. —HELEN

SUDDEN THOUGHTS FROM SUE: You might switch places in a month, with the girl cooled and you getting interested. If you didn't like her more than you think, would you be so worried about dumping her? —SUE

Rap:
It started out as a joke. My identical twin and I like to get fellas confused — but we played the "switch game" once too often and now we're in love with the same guy.
He knows we're "two" now, but he still treats us as one. That is, he dates us both and, because we played tricks and made jokes about it at first, he assumes we don't mind sharing him. Sometimes, even yet, he gets confused about which twin he's with. Seems to like us

Dear Dr. Lamb— This problem has been of the deepest concern to me for years. Perhaps a straight answer will help settle my mind. I am 24 and afraid to let anyone see me naked. The reason is my penis is very small—under four inches when erected. I have avoided doctors, showers in physical education classes, skinny dipping and other possible situations where someone might see me. I have finally persuaded myself to write to you to find out if there are any drugs which can help me. This is important because soon I will be called for a draft physical. I don't know what kind of a doctor to see about this and won't see one unless there is some way he can help. I don't need a pep talk because everything else works all right, except for my underdeveloped sex organs. I have hair and can ejaculate. Can you answer this soon? I am in love with a wonderful woman but could never disappoint her this way. Thank you for sharing your knowledge. Dear Reader—No doubt some will severely criticize me for answering your letter.

Incidentally, unless a woman has been sexually active, the vaginal canal is often quite small—so narrow that on physical examination it may be difficult at first to admit even the index finger. The vaginal canal usually adapts to the size of the male partner, except in cases where the female muscles and ligaments have been torn or stretched from childbirth.

Most women would rather have a loving husband who is tender and considerate than a husband who has only a large organ. There is much more to being a man than the size of one's penis.

The concern of men over the size of their penis is very similar to the woman's concern about the size of her breasts. In both cases physical size has been related to the concept of masculinity or femininity and is an important factor in the person's self-image. You are a good example. You have sold yourself short and avoided many of life's normal situations because of your image of yourself. You have been afraid to declare your love for the woman of your choice because you are unsure of your sexual ability—all because your penis is shorter than you thought it needed to be.

Some psychiatrists say that the concern a man has over the size of his penis begins in childhood when he sees his father. He equates the size of his father's penis to his all powerful male role. He then wants to "measure up" to his dad. Our mind plays tricks on us. When we are small everything looks big and in later years we are surprised to find out that the big house was really quite small by adult standards. So the memory of the gigantic penis is implanted in the male brain as a goal to achieve.

A bird in the hand..

Chip and Wendy Snowden, the children of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Snowden of Hope, found out first-hand about the old adage "A bird in the hand..." when they were "adopted" by two fledgling bluejays. They were first captured in a bird trap, then turned loose. But refusing to leave, the two bluejays roosted on the Snowden's mailbox, and for a time became the talk of the neighborhood.

AT TOP—Chip, 9, bypasses one bird to give his counterpart a pat on the head.

AT RIGHT—Jealousy, anyone?

BELOW—Another form of jealousy was apparent as Wendy, 9, took time out to hold one of the birds.

America is more than a "melting pot" of the world. It is the crucible from which emerged the ONLY system of government that has ever proved successful . . . for the people, and by the people.

Whether your family came on the Mayflower or in our 20th Century, they had one trait in common. They were young in heart — high in spirit.

The timid hugged close to Old World firesides. The strong, brave and self-reliant followed the promise of freedom to seek the better life . . . the AMERICAN Way of Life.

With such a heritage goes a sacred duty to perpetuate the glorious traditions that have made us great and free!

All of us should strive for a clear understanding of the forces that won for us world leadership . . . and share it with our children as their glorious, rightful heritage.

Isn't it time for us to bring back a much needed awareness of "THIS IS AMERICA — MY COUNTRY"

helped the Mets beat San Diego
3-2 Friday night.

The Mets' victory, also fashioned on Tom Seaver's five-hitter, kept them in pursuit of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Na-

The Pirates retained their three-game edge after beating
the Houston Astros 5-2.

Elsewhere in the National

the Cincinnati Reds turned

the San Francisco Giants wal-

Big Brother was watching and little brother couldn't have been happier.

"I think there was a little anxiety over what might happen, but I was delighted it finally came to be," Detroit
catcher Tom Haller said Friday night after his older brother, Umpire Bill Haller, had spent the evening looking over his shoulder.

Having a brother in on the action didn't help Tom and his Tiger teammates.

"It proved," Tom said after Kansas City squeaked past Detroit 1-0, "that when you're on a ball field, you have a job to do and you worry about brotherhood second."

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland beat Texas
2-0 in 14 innings, Minnesota edged Boston 7-6, Milwaukee battered California 7-3 and, in a pair of twilight doubleheaders, Oakland took two from the New York Yankees 9-3 and 1-0 and Baltimore swept a pair from the Chicago White Sox, 7-4 and 3-0.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs outlasted Atlanta

St. Louis 6-3, the New York Mets nipped San Diego 3-2, San Francisco slugged Philadelphia
8-1 and Montreal mauled Los Angeles 9-1.

The only things that helped the Royals to victory were Amos Otis' fourth-inning double and John Mayberry's run-scoring single plus the combined
three-hit hurling of Bruce Dal Canton, Tom Burgmeier and Ken Wright.

Gaylord Perry hurled 13 innings of shutout ball, then bowed out and picked up his 15th victory in the 14th inning
as the Indians pushed across a pair of runs on two Texas er-

capped a three-run second inning off Rick Wise that carried Cincinnati over St. Louis. The rally gave the Reds an early 4-0 lead and their eventual winning runs against the Cardinals.

Bobby Bonds blasted a home run, triple and two singles to lead San Francisco to an easy victory over Philadelphia.
Bonds scored three runs and drove in two to make it a cinch for Juan Marichal to pick up his second straight victory and fourth of the campaign. The Giants' ace, off to the worst start of his career, has lost 10 games
so far.

Baylor Moore earned his first major league victory, hurling a five-hitter, and Ron Fairly drove in four runs as Montreal came up with a club record 17 hits enroute to victory over Los Angeles.

Moore, who had lost three straight decisions this season,
including one to Los Angeles, retired the first 15 Dodgers and breezed behind the Expos' highest-ever hit total. Fairly singled home two runs in the fifth, doubled in one in the seventh and singled home another in the ninth.

Nelson Briles fired a four-hitter and Gene Alley drove in a pair of runs with a double and triple to boost Pittsburgh over Houston. Briles surrendered the Astro runs in the sixth on a walk and Lee May's 19th home run.

Pinch-hitter Paul Popovich capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning with a run-scoring single, leading Chicago over Atlanta in a game studded with home runs. The Cubs hit four and the Braves hit two by Mike Lum.

Pete Rose's two-run single capped a three-run second inning off Rick Wise that carried Cincinnati over St. Louis. The
rally gave the Reds an early 4-0 lead and their eventual winning runs against the Cardinals.

Harmon Killebrew hit his 13th homer of the season in the third inning, then drew a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth to force over the winning run, capping a three-run rally that propelled the Twins
past the Red Sox.

Steve Kline of the Yanks had a 3-0 lead and a perfect game after six innings of the opener against Oakland. Six pitches into the seventh, his perfect game, no-hitter and lead were gone as he hit Bert Campaneris with a 1-0 pitch, gave up a single to Joe Rudi on a 1-0 pitch, a first-pitch homer to Reggie Jackson and a first-pitch homer to Mike Epstein.

"It was painless, that's for sure," Kline sighed. "It happened so fast."

First-inning doubles by Campaneris and Angel Mangual and the combined shutout
work of John "Blue Moon" Odom and Darold Knowles
gave the A's the nightcap.

Dave Johnson drove in three runs to lead Baltimore to its opening-game victory and Bobby Grich hit a two-run homer and Doyle Alexander fired a two-hitter in the second game
to sweep the White Sox.

Ex-Jet Sauer is still running

By IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) —
Far away, George Sauer Jr.
watched the Miami-Kansas City NFL playoff game on television. Yes, he said, "I was so close to it, I almost cried for Jan Stenerud."

Stenerud missed a field goal try in the last seconds that would have won the game for Kansas City in regulation time. "I don't think I ever dropped a pass in that big a situation, but I think I knew how Stenerud felt, failing in this big moment, and I wanted to go hide for him," recalled Sauer recently, by telephone from his new home in San Francisco.

"The game kept me en-thrilled. The way it ensawed back and forth reminded me of those great games the Jets used to have with the Oakland Raiders."

The excitement of those games brought back some fond memories for Sauer.
But the fondness was fleeting. Soon, he resumed his ritual of running six miles a day "to help clear my head, to try to un-complicate myself. I develop a steady rhythm for about 45 minutes that transports me into a nice state of mindlessness—
though a lot of people think I don't have to run for that."

George Sauer quit pro football after the 1970 season. Many thought he would return. He did not.

Sauer, at age 27, retired at the top of his game, when he was an All-Pro receiver for the New York Jets. His reasons, he says, were both philosophical and personal. He said he was "incredibly tired" of the "big, gaudy business" was sick of the hypocrisy of football people preaching that the game was "the Savior of mankind" while encouraging "a needless hatred of your opponent
—your fellow man"; was disgusted with "people pawing and drooling over me because I was a football player.
I wanted to be private."

His departure, surprisingly, did not have the impact of a Curt Flood in baseball or a Dave Megyessy in football. They dropped bombs when they quit. Sauer let fall pebbles. The others wrote heatedly controversial books concerning racial discrimination and drug-taking in American sports.

Both Flood and Megyessy
were characterized by opponents as malcontents: Flood was a racist, Meg
